"Kamu anak durhaka. Roti yang lezat kamu injak-injak. Padahal ibumu sangat membutuhkannya," kata nenek itu memarahi Nita.

Wattu eta siam, indo Nita tappa tä' mala kahiu-hiu anna te'dä-te'dä bäääm mendadi tau-tau. Indo tau-tau allo-allo lolä uwai matanna tanda kamapi'disanna.

Seketika itu tubuh Nita menjadi kaku dan tidak bisa digerakkan. Perlahan-lahan tubuhnya berubah menjadi patung. Setiap hari patung itu mengeluarkan airmata kesedihan.

The Girl that became a Statue

p.1 In a village there lived a widow with her daughter, Nita. Everyday they would look for firewood in the forest, and then sell it in the city.

p.2 Time slowly passed by. Nita grew up to be a beautiful girl. It was sad that she also became proud.

p.3 One day Nita asked permission from her mother to work in the city. At first her mother objected, but Nita continued to insist. In the end Nita was given permission to go.

p.4 In the city Nita lived with a generous, rich family. Nita was considered like their own child. She was given beautiful clothes and constantly spoiled.

p.5 Nita ought to have been thankful to God for everything. In reality however, Nita became increasingly proud. She did not want to associate with poor children.

p.6 One day Nita was asked to go home to see her mother. "Please go home Nita. Your mother certainly misses you very much," said her adopted mother.

p.7 In the middle of her trip home Nita met her mother dressed in rags. Nita was embarrassed and quickly returned to the city.

p.8 The next month Nita was again asked to go see her mother. This time she was given some delicious bread to take to her mother. "Give this to your mother, I'm sure she will enjoy it," said her adopted mother.

p.9 This time it was the rainy season and the road was very muddy. Nita did not want her dress and shoes to get muddy. She therefore threw the bread on the ground and stepped on it so her shoes would not get dirty.

p.10 Nita walked on the delicious bread. When she stepped on the last slice of bread she fell and her clothes were covered in mud. Luckily for her there was an old woman carrying some water.

p.11 "May I have some water to clean my dress old woman?" asked Nita.
"Certainly. Why don't you come a little closer," replied the old woman.

p.12 Nita stepped a little closer. Suddenly the woman splashed the water all over her.
"This water is for a rebellious child," she said.

p.13 "You rebellious child. You stepped on this delicious bread, while your mother really needed it," said the old woman angrily to Nita.

p.14 Immediately Nita's body became stiff and could not move. Slowly her body changed and became a statue. And everyday the statue cries tears of sorrow.
